Are you affected by Anti-Social Behaviour?
See it…Hear it…Report it…
This leaflet explains what you can expect from the council, the police and other agencies in tackling anti-social behaviour and how you can work with them to resolve the problems in your neighbourhood.

What is anti-social behaviour?

We try and ensure that those people that live and work in Central Bedfordshire enjoy a quiet and peaceful environment. However when anti-social behaviour does effect your life, we know it can have a significant impact.

Anti-social behaviour is defined as:
Any threatening, nuisance or intimidating behaviour which impacts on a person’s quality of life. It can be:
- Nuisance neighbours
- Abusive and rowdy behaviour
- Informal drinking in public places
- Vandalism
- Graffiti and fly-typing
- Inappropriate disposal of litter and rubbish
- Vehicle/motorcycle nuisance
- Noise nuisance

This is not an exhaustive list as there are many different types of anti-social behaviour.

Can I resolve myself?

Sometimes the person committing the anti-social behaviour does not realise the affect they are having on someone and may stop the behaviour when they are made aware.

If you feel able to do so, approach the person who is behaving anti-socially and speak to them in a calm and polite manner, listen to what they have to say and be prepared to compromise if appropriate.

If you do not feel that you can do this please follow the advice on ‘You can report anti-social behaviour to the following’ section within this leaflet. This section has contact details for teams dedicated to tackling anti-social behaviour.

Who is responsible for tackling it?

Your local authority, the police and social landlords all have strong and effective powers to deal with anti-social behaviour problems.

You have a right to expect the police, the council and other agencies to make tackling anti-social behaviour a priority and to respond sympathetically.

By members of the public coming forward to report anti-social behaviour, this may prevent the same problem happening again, and will help make your community a safer place.

What can I do if I am experiencing anti-social behaviour?

When anti-social behaviour is long term, persistent and peoples’ enjoyment of the community is affected, further action to resolve the problem may be necessary.

You can help the police and other agencies to tackle problems in your neighbourhood by reporting anti-social behaviour when you see it.

By playing an active role in your community you can really help make a difference and create a place where anti-social behaviour is tackled and not tolerated.

Details of who to contact are available on the back page.
